SCHOOL COUNSELOR

MOTIVATING YOUR CHILDREN! PART 5:

- Be certain that the child gets sufficient rest and sleep. Tired children simply cannot learn. Research indicates that even a one-hour difference in the amount of sleep a child gets will impact upon the child's school performance the next day. Sleep allows children to process the previous day's events, and to consolidate learned and memorized information. In order for a child to reach a deep, restful sleep he must go to bed feeling safe, secure, and loved. Avoid parent-child conflicts at bedtime.
