MOTIVATING YOUR CHILDREN! PART 10:

- Make an effort to take care of yourself. Maintain your physical health by eating right and exercising. Have a strong support system and allow yourself the “luxury” of participating in activities that replenish your energy and boost your spirits. Recognize your own response to anxiety and give yourself permission to take a break occasionally. You will be less effective as an advocate and coach for your child if you are exhausted and drained. There is a reason why airlines advise you to do the oxygen mask first. . . then offer assistance to others.
